sported fresh facepaint, said they liked playing the instruments at the Huntsville Symphony Orchestra Guild tent. Ashlyn said she liked the violin. Little sister Natalie then chimed in, "My favorite part was the drum."

Big kids like the Panoply Arts Festival, too. Mayor Tommy Battle, dressed in less formal attire than usual, walked through the festival shaking hands, watching bands and scoping out art. Battle seemed most impressed by the work in the Student Art Tent.

"What talent you have in this town," Battle said after seeing the art done by local students.

The mayor said he attends Panoply every year, but this year has been special – not because he's the mayor, but "because it's not raining."
